Boulder Housing Partners Foundation Receives Donation from Unitarian Universalist Church of Boulder

Boulder Housing Partners Foundation has received a $2,800 donation from the Unitarian Universalist Church of Boulder and its congregation in support of the affordable housing programs that Boulder Housing Partners administers for the City of Boulder.

“We recognize the sincere commitment that our local churches like the Unitarian Universalist Church of Boulder have for families in need,” said Betsey Martens, executive director of Boulder Housing Partners, “and are grateful for their support to help us provide affordable housing and build a sense of community to those who would otherwise be homeless or unable to live in Boulder.”

“As part of our mission, our congregation looks for ways to support worthwhile efforts that are making a difference in our community,” said Hilton Fitt-Peaster, a volunteer coordinator of the Unitarian Universalist Church of Boulder Share-Our-Plate program. “For the entire month of October, our Sunday morning worship collections were for Boulder Housing Partners, as voted by our congregation, as we recognize the great work that it does for those needing housing the most. In addition to offering financial support to nonprofits like Boulder Housing Partners Foundation, we encourage our members to volunteer their time as well, thus putting our values and faith into action.”

About Boulder Housing Partners Foundation

Boulder Housing Partners Foundation, a nonprofit 501(c)(3), helps Boulder Housing Partners’ residents pursue successful, productive and dignified lives by mobilizing resources for supportive, life-enriching, and community building services. The foundation was created to help fund the critical service needs of the Boulder Housing Partners’ residents at a time when many traditional sources of funding are being reduced.
